

Acknowledgement

The present thesis is the outcome of my enrolment as a Ph.D scholar in the Department of Economics, Gauhati University, a centre of excellence for higher learning and research.

I acknowledge with gratitude that I am highly indebted to Dr. K.K. Barman, Rtrd. Professor of Economics, Gauhati University, Guwahati for his able guidance and valuable suggestions in preparation of this thesis. His knowledge and insights helped me to look into the problem properly and to pick up the essential from the trivial. I am grateful for all the pains he has taken for me in preparing this thesis.

I am grateful to the Head of the Department of Economics, Gauhati University and the learned faculty members of the Department for their guidance and suggestions during the period of my study.

I am highly indebted to the authorities of K.K. Handique Library, Gauhati University, Library of NEHU, Shillong, Dibrugarh University Library, Dibrugarh, OKD Institute of Social Change and Development, Guwahati for kindly allowing me to use their library resources for the purpose of my study.

My sincere gratitude goes to the registrar of Gauhati University, for inspiration during the period of my study.

I am grateful to the elderly persons who gave their time in interviews and informal discussions. The officials at the village panchayats, other government departments and staff of old age homes deserve my sincere thanks.

I also offer my heartfelt thanks to Dr. HK Dev Sarmah, Principal, and Mr. H.N. Sarmah, Vice-Principal and other fellow colleagues including office and library staff of Kampur College for supporting me to complete my research work. My sincere gratitude is also due to Maa, Deuta and all the family members whose well wishes were a guiding force in successful completion of the work.

I also thankful to the staff of Ms. Amit DTP Centre, Nagaon for typing the thesis and Mr. Amal Das of Guwahati for printing the thesis in time.

With these words, this thesis is presented for favour of examination by the academic authorities.
